

MORGAN SMITHS ARE MUCH WANTED

Both Sides Surprised at Couple's Disappearance.

SCORED BY THE ATTORNEYS

Say Pair Had Nothing to Fear—An Injustice to Mrs. Nan
Patterson.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Morgan Smiths have now apparently become the most interesting figures in the mystery of the hansom cab tragedy.

Detectives have been ransacking the city for them ever since they gave up their rooms at the St. Paul on Wednesday evening, and have not yet found them. The presence of Mr. Smith is much desired.

Refused to Answer.

When he was asked by Mr. Garvan on Tuesday last if he knew anything about the pistol with which Young was killed, he refused to answer. Mr. Garvan said after the interview that Smith had declined answering the questions on the ground that it might incriminate him.

The district attorney now wants Pawnbroker Stern, of 516 Sixth Avenue, who sold the pistol, to see Smith and say whether he is or is not the man who bought it. If Smith knew nothing about the pistol, the district attorney says, he is surprised that he did not frankly say so when he was asked the question.

Actress Not the Woman.

That Miss Patterson was not the woman who accompanied the purchaser of the pistol is established by the pawnbroker's positive statement.

The body attachment which was issued on Thursday against Smith is, of course, ineffective if the man is beyond the borders of the State, and, as there is apparently no other charge against him than having failed to appear while under subpoena, he may rest at ease across the river in New Jersey and laugh at the efforts of the detectives to get him.

Disappearance Denounced.

Abraham Levy, of counsel for Miss Patterson, denounced in a most energetic way the act of Smith in disappearing.

"He is doing Miss Patterson a great wrong by his conduct," said Mr. Levy, "and I am amazed that the man should pursue such a course. He had nothing to fear, and I shall do all in my power to discover his whereabouts and bring him forward."

"There was no reason in the world why either he or his wife should go away, and if Mrs. Smith did go away with him, and is still with him, it is due to his personal influence over her, and not to the exercise of her own reasoning powers."

"My observation of the two leads me to believe that Mrs. Smith is much devoted to her husband, and that her judgment is largely swayed by him."

Mrs. Smith Heard From.

Mr. Unger, another of Miss Patterson's lawyers, said that she received a letter or a communication of some sort from her sister, Mrs. Smith, but he said he did not know from where the missive was sent. Miss Patterson also received telegrams.

Captain Sweeney, of the Eighth precinct, who has done good work getting evidence in the case, said that a number of his best detectives were trying to find the woman who was said to have bewailed the publicity which had been given to the discovery of Pawnbroker Stern.

No Indictments Asked.

There were rumors abroad, absurd on their face, that an indictment against Mr. Smith had been asked as a preliminary to his arrest. In case he was found outside the State, New York, while there is no truth in this, it is the opinion of some who are officially engaged in the case that the purchaser of the pistol, if he is positively identified, will be put under arrest at once, and that the necessary steps will be taken to determine whether Young's death be found to be due to suicide or murder.

The transfer of the case so soon after its purchase to either one or the other of the parties foremost in the tragedy, it is believed, will be regarded as prima facie evidence of criminal intent.

The sole ground on which Mr. Garvan, representing the District Attorney, asked an adjournment of the inquest before Coroner Brock, was the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

To Take Testimony.

It is believed that the inquest on Monday, if it is not again postponed, will be nothing more than a formal taking of testimony as to the fact of death and that none of the more important testimony bearing upon the case will be brought out.

On Monday, in all probability, will be determined whether there is or is not an indictment found by the grand jury against Miss Patterson.

The long-sought witness who was seen by several to jump up on the step of the hansom cab immediately after the shooting and whose presence was formally requested by Mr. Garvan in appeal sent out through the newspapers, proved to be as unimportant as have nearly all of the many other witnesses who have come forward during the past few days.

DAUGHTER, WHILE SINGLE,
ENJOYS MOTHER'S ESTATE

The will of Harriet S. Lusk, bearing date of December 31, 1902, has been filed for probate. By the terms of the will all real, personal, and mixed property of the testator is left, after payment of just debts and funeral expenses, to her daughter, Junia L. Lusk, provided she remains unmarried, with full power to dispose of the house, 109 Seventeenth Street northwest, if she deems it advisable to do so.

Should she marry the will provides for the payment of $25 to the son of the legator, Charles S. Lusk, the residue of the estate to be equally divided among her daughters, Elizabeth M. Kelly, Harriet L. Childs, and Junia L. Lusk. Samuel Ross is named executor.

EXTRADITION FOR ILLINGSWORTH

LONDON, June 11.—Samuel Illingsworth, of Philadelphia, who was arrested on board the steamship Teutonic on May 18 on her arrival at Queenstown from New York on a charge of embezzlement, has been ordered extradited. He is accused of stealing $600 belonging to the Ives, Dietz & Metzger Company, his employers.

Nashville, Tenn. Southern Railway will sell round-trip tickets from Washington to Nashville, Tenn., and return, at rate of $15.05, June 19 to 15, inclusive, good to return June 18, except that extension to July 10, 1904, may be had upon deposit of ticket and payment of 50 cents to joint agent.

Driven Miles to Sea By Gale in a Launch

Party of Five in Grave Peril—Unprotected
From Rain and Wind and Suffering
From Pangs of Hunger.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 11.—Tossed by waves and driven many miles to sea, wholly at the mercy of the severe northeast gale raging down coast for the last twenty-four hours, William E. Broomfield, a well known hotel man of this city, with a party of friends, arrived at the Inlet wharf after passing through a thrilling experience.

On Thursday afternoon they started on their return trip to this city after a day's fishing in the launch Avalon. They were out in the gale and at the mercy of cutting winds and high seas. With Mr. Broomfield, who is proprietor of the Mercantile Buffet, were John Peterson, A. J. Perkins, Joseph Lott and Patrick Wallace.

Although a launch of the type common at the Inlet, the Avalon proved to be a staunch craft. Had she not been so seaworthy it is doubtful if they could have survived the continual pounding of the waves.

The little four horsepower engine aboard was started at full speed, but the storm came up so rapidly it was powerless to keep the boat in its course. She was driven far out of her course. Heavy rain began falling, and there was no cabin in which the men could take shelter. The men were all in the downpour and endured the cutting winds, with a constant grip on the guard rail at the side of the craft. Hunger added to their misery.

When day broke the storm had abated, and the men found they had been driven many miles to sea. By aid of a compass they were able to get their bearings, and turned the Avalon in the direction of the Inlet, which they reached after several hours of rough weather on the water.

CAR, IN DARKNESS,
KILLS WILLIAM PIERCE

Inquest to Be Held to Place Responsibility—Mortman Could Not See Man on Track.

To place responsibility for the death of William Pierce, of Lammonds station, knocked down and killed by a Brightwood car last night, Coroner Nevitt will hold an inquest at the Sixth precinct station Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Pierce is said to have been seen walking along the tracks near Piney Branch Road and Wildwood station. Later he was struck and killed by a car. The mortman, Robert H. Weaver, could not see the man in the darkness.

While running at a high speed the mortman felt a severe jar. Weaver pulled the brakes and endeavored to stop the car, but it was not quick enough, however, and the wheels passed over the body of the man.

The car was stopped some distance on. Weaver and Conductor Thomas F. Quinland went back and found Pierce's mangled body.

There were still signs of life. The men placed the injured man on the car and hurried to the city. Pierce died in the hospital.

The body was turned over to the police of the Eighth precinct station. Later it was taken in charge by Morguekeeper Schenberger.

Police of the Tenth precinct station took Weaver and Quinland into custody. Later they were released on the order of Coroner Nevitt, who ordered them to appear at the Sixth precinct and give testimony at the inquest.

JAMES S. BURRUSS DEAD; A VETERAN TELEGRAPHER

Postal's Night Traffic Chief Victim of Apoplexy—A Skilled Operator.

An attack of apoplexy yesterday ended the life of James S. Burruss, a veteran telegrapher, and night traffic chief of local branch of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company. His death occurred at noon, at his home at 1437 S Street northwest.

Mr. Burruss had been in usual health until his arrival at the Postal's office at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when he complained of feeling ill. He grew worse and had to be sent home in a cab, becoming unconscious on his arrival. Ten minutes later he was dead.

For the past twelve years Mr. Burruss had been a Postal employee, his work of late being as night traffic chief. During sessions of Congress he was assistant to J. P. Gosh, night chief of the Postal's Washington service. For twenty years prior to his connection with the Postal he was employed by the Western Union.

Mr. Burruss had been one of the most skilled operators in the country. This was before the days of the typewriter, and Mr. Burruss frequently received the Presidential messages. "In the past without relief a remarkable feat. During the civil war he was an operator in Lee's army."

He was a native of Petersburg, Va., where the body was taken for interment at 10 o'clock. His wife and two sons, Mr. Burruss leaves a wife and two sons.

SIAMESE REBELS KILL AND LOOT

Officials Murdered, Public Buildings
Sacked—Bloody Fights
With Troops.

PARIS, June 11.—The Pompenh, Indo China, correspondent of "Patrie" wires that a rebellion has broken out in Siam. Several officials have been murdered and public buildings sacked.

Fierce conflicts have occurred between the rebels and Siamese troops with heavy casualties on both sides. A general uprising is feared.

The French region is still quiet, but the frontier posts have been reinforced.

FUNERAL OF CLIFFORD WARDEN.

Funeral services were held over the body of Clifford Warden, assistant librarian of the Senate, yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 509 Twenty-third Street northwest. The services were conducted by the Rev. Alfred Harding, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial was at Oak Hill.

The pallbearers were George H. Boyd, James M. Baker, Gen. H. V. Boynton, Albert Baker, Albert Briggs, and Henry C. Ryan.

Extraordinary Accommodations at St. Louis Fair.

Splendid Hotel Right Inside Exposition Grounds.
Thousands of Rooms at Very Moderate Rates—Ideal Conditions.

Visitors to the World's Fair at St. Louis need not fear either lack of accommodations or exorbitant prices. Under the supervision of the World's Fair Management a huge hotel has been built right inside the exposition grounds, and it is the most modern and convenient of all modern hotels.

Those who remember the heart-breaking weariness of the long journey home after a tiring day at the World's Fair, will appreciate the advantages of the Exposition grounds. No admission fee other than the first will be needed by guests of The Inside Inn, while the saving effected of carfare, subway, train service, etc., will prove a valuable item to those who study economy.

The enormous capacity of The Inside Inn assures ample accommodations for all—no matter when or in what numbers they come—but those who prefer to secure their rooms in advance may make reservations for any period during the life of the Fair. A post card addressed to The Inside Inn, Administration Bldg., World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis, Mo., will bring a most interesting booklet, giving every possible detail.

LONDON HOTELS DECLINE TO ENTERTAIN DOWIE

LONDON, June 11.—John Alexander Dowie's agents are experiencing difficulty in getting quarters for him in London. Hotel keepers are making excuses for refusing to receive him, declaring that he used insulting language toward King Edward.

It is said that this was the reason why Mrs. Dowie and her son Gladstone, were requested, as it was reported, to leave their present hotel quarters in London.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT EMERSON INSTITUTE

The fifty-third annual commencement of Emerson Institute was held Friday afternoon in the main hall of the building, on Fourteenth Street, between I and K Streets. The principal, Charles B. Young, presided over the exercises, of which the chief feature was the oratorical contest. The gold medal for the best declamation was awarded to William E. McCauley; the first silver medal to Charles C. Wilson, and the second silver medal to E. Barrett Prettyman. John St. Claire Brooks delivered the valedictory, and Leland E. Morris the salutatory.

MOTHER CAST BABY DOWN SIX STORIES

NEW YORK, June 11.—Frankie with fear at a fire in a six-story tenement house on Stanton Street, Mrs. Benjamin Apfel threw her only child, a babe of four months, from a window of her apartments to death on the pavement three stories below.

Mrs. Apfel was prevented from leaping to the street after her child by firemen.

More than a score of persons were taken in safety from the fire escapes by means of scaling ladders.

VAIN SEARCH FOR SMITH IN WASHINGTON HOME

Local police upon request from New York have visited the Franklin apartment house to inquire whether J. Morgan Smith, brother-in-law of Nan Patterson, has arrived here.

Mr. Smith, regarded as an important witness to the Cesar Young shooting case, eluded the New York authorities who served a subpoena on him. His disappearance has caused a delay in the investigation in connection with which Nan Patterson, of this city, has been arrested.

It is denied by the family here that Smith is in Washington.

Do You Know What Ship This Is?

The — spent much of her time in port after she went into commission. Occasionally she was allowed to go out and blow up derelicts, or to try and see if she could blow them up. But good officers and good seamen were too valuable to be risked on a floating anarchist bomb. Raw recruits on the — used to turn pale when she rolled. She rolled a good deal, too, for she is just twice the size of a torpedo boat destroyer, and one-third larger than the old side-wheeler Michigan on the Great Lakes.

Her usual time for firing was 11 o'clock at night. She would fire three shells and then steam back to her anchorage. She disturbed the Spanish sleep to some extent, until they found her bark worse than her bite. Her three shells would make a terrific noise. They greatly impressed the Cubans, who considered the — a floating earthquake, liable to unload at any time.

Do You Know What This Is?

Bitter attacks had been made upon the enterprise. The amount of cost estimated was criticised as being too small, and the amount of the receipts estimated was criticised on the ground that it was too large. From a political point of view it was sought to arouse fears of hostility on the part of the United States of America.

While under prosecution — explained the causes of this violent opposition, and showed how his father had succeeded in putting a stop to it. He was obliged to consent to put the financial management of the enterprise in the hands of a group of persons connected with journalism and finance, who undertook to render public opinion favorable to the enterprise.

Do You Know What Money This Was?

"More than a month before Richmond fell," said Jones, "Mr. — intrusted to me something like $13,000,000 in gold, silver, and other valuables. It was in kegs and boxes, and was loaded in a box car; almost anyone would have taken it for old junk. I was told to keep the car switching around from place to place. That car, with its precious load, was hauled around and side-tracked at a number of places in North and South Carolina. I was nervous about the whole matter, although never a soul suspected what was in the car. After a time I received instructions to take the car to Newberry, S. C., and turn it over to Captain Parker, orders I was glad enough to carry out.

"Captain Parker was at Newberry, and I turned the kegs and boxes of money over to him. He had some country teams at the depot and the 'junk' was loaded into the wagons and carried to a point between Newberry, S. C., and Washington, Ga., where it was buried on the side of the road deep down in the sand."

Do You Know What Laboratory This Is?

The discovery and positive identification of the bubonic plague in San Francisco were the work of Dr. Kinyon, an officer trained in the laboratory. His own diagnosis was confirmed by the examination of specimens submitted to the laboratory, and resulted in the establishment of a special plague laboratory in the affected city, which has been under the continuous charge of an officer trained in the laboratory here. A portion of his duty has been the examination of every sick and dead Chinaman, and of every rat and other animal found dead in the Chinese quarter, so that the manner in which the disease is introduced in this country may be positively determined.

Do You Know This Washington Girl?

Here is the sensation of the year—the Pocket Venus has turned man-hater!

"I did not like American men because they were too ardent. They frighten me. I do not like English beaux because they are too stupid. They bore me." So says Venus.

Over in London they call her "The Pocket Venus." At home she is Miss —, affectionately termed Polly.

Though often reported "engaged to be married," she has at last made an announcement which she says is her final one. She hates men, and will wed no one. The English lord whose heart has lain at her pretty feet is out of the running. She has refused him.

"I love three things," says she—"my mother, my art, and my automobile." And then, she adds prettily, "and I live for three things—for fame, for the work I expect to do in the world, and my dog." The last is with a laugh to take the seriousness out of her words.

Do You Know How You Get Your Milk?

Great care is taken of the huge milk cans in which the milk is brought to town. They are scrubbed inside and out, and the inner surface of the can shines like silver. Machines for washing cans are used in some large dairies.

In some dairies a machine is also used for washing the bottles when they come back. This is a task which often causes the dairyman to groan in spirit and say unpleasant things, for many housewives are not half as careful as they ought to be about washing out the bottles before returning them.

Possibly some of them do not know that anything which has had sweet milk in it ought to be washed in cold water first, since hot water sours the milk and causes it to stick; and that if milk is allowed to dry on the glass it is an unenviable job to get it off, especially in a hurry, with a few hundred other bottles waiting to be washed.

Do You Know Who This Is?

Eighty-one years of age and a candidate for governor with more than a fair chance of election; in fact, with the probabilities of election in his favor—such a man does the Democracy of — present to the voters of that State in the person of —. The candidacy of a man at such advanced age for the high office of governor is said to be without precedent in the history of American politics. It was thought by many that the Hon. Levi P. Morton, who was elected governor of New York ten years ago, when he was seventy years of age, was too old to perform the duties of that office, yet he proved to be one of the best executives the State ever had. Mr. —, however, is eleven years older than Governor Morton was when he assumed the governor's chair at Albany.

Do You Know What This Occasion Was?

So when this latest achievement of Lacson was announced to the two thousand persons assembled on Georgetown campus there was great craning of necks to get a good view of the young fellow. As he stepped forward under the glare of the electric light he made a striking figure in his rich robe of the doctorate in philosophy, the black and purple and gold accentuating the Oriental effect of his dark skin and eyes, and straight black hair, and making more marked the contrast between him and his lighter-skinned brothers of the North.
